

TYPHOON RIPS THROUGH CEMETERY, HUNDREDS DEAD.

JUNE 25, 1998

On June 22, 1998 Conner O'Neil was charged with the murder of hundreds of people in the Rosemary Cemetery of Boston. Along with the mass killing, O'Neil will be charged with reckless driving, driving without a permit and violence without just cause.

It was on this Sunday afternoon in June that O'Neil took off into town to the many roads of Boston, before stating there was "too much traffic" and change direction to speed off towards the empty streets of Queen and 2nd.

"Crazy!" Stated an elderly Matt Johnson of Boston's Queen Street. "Driving all over the road and up onto sidewalks I tell yeah! The man wasn't in his right mind!"

To everyone's shock and embarrassment no one contacted the police of the man's behaviour, instead watched in awe as O'Neil jump curbs and "popped wheelies" till he came upon the Rosemary Cemetery.

To spectator's surprise, O'Neil broke the lock with a pair of suspicious garden clippers, and then entered with a loud shout of "Bwahaha", revving the engine of his machine.

A spectator, whose name shall not be given due to legal issues, finally coming to his senses called police and they arrived on scene within twenty minutes.

Upon arresting O'Neil the PD of Boston found hundreds dead. The only statement Conner O'Neil would give was "They were dead when I got here! Dead and buried!"

Needless to say there will be further investigation on this case of this mad man and his terrible Typhoon of terror.
